The Middle Way.

Mr. and Mrs. L. O.

If peace and quietness are to be suited, and the enjoyment of a life of ordered serenity and domestic hap-piness, those are surest to attain these piness, those are surest to attain these ends who keep the middle way, moving forward at a leisurely pace, lingering at pleasant nooks along the road, falling out of the ranks at times to forage a little in pleasant fields, and keeping most of the time so near the rear of the column that the guns far away at the front sound faint and unreal. The people who keep to the middle way may not be heroic, for their natures are not attuned to strife, but they are kindly, genial companbut they are kindly, genial compan-ions and good comrades and friends. They prefer to move along the "cool, They prefer to move along the "cool, sequestered vale of life." with its beauty and quietude rather than to tramp the world's dusty highway in a spirit of contentlousness with streaming banners and blaring trumpets. There are plenty to answer the lure of smbition and to plunge into every shifting scene of strife. Those who pursue the middle way are the noisy advocates of no causes, and so far as possible antagonize no one. Their advocates of no causes, and so far as possible antagonize no one. Their theory is to take life as it comes and enjoy it to the utmost as it is. If the majority wish to change it, well and good; they will not help it on. There come times of great upheaval, when there seems to be no middle way left, but ordinarily it is the way of the majority, and doubtless for the majority it is the wisest, happiest way.—Cincinnati Enguirer. cinnati Enquirer.

Confusion in Modesty.

The spirit of the spinster who clothed the legs of the plano is strong in the land. "No bathers in costume allowed behind the front line of the bathhouse," the signs at the beaches say. Youngsters at track meets shock no one by their shortness of garments, but when at practice they go running through a residential street a hurry call is sent for the police. In a city call is sent for the police. In a city in New Jersey the girls of a school-some of them as old 10—appeared in low-necked waists when the mercury began to hubble. The principal was shocked. # Do You Know Why Advertising Fails?

It is just this! Most users of advertising are imitators—only a few are original. But, if they were good imitators, the loss would not be so great.

Someone makes a tremendous success using illustrations—instantly there is a world of illustrated advertisements. One of the greatest advertisement writers devised the plan of using Cheltenham Bold headlines with black underscoring, and other advertisers imitate the plan, thinking they have his copy.

Someone conceives the idea of using sales arguments in their copy, and all advertisements show the influence by being packed with 8-point solid, prosy talk. These advertisements do not pull, of course. The trouble lies in the eternal chase of form. "Form in Copy" is the topic of an article in
